

Internet Access

There are several options for gaining Internet access when you first arrive:

- Most schools at Harvard have computers for their students' general use. Inquire at your school.
- The Harvard Events and Information Center on the ground floor of the Holyoke Center has three computers available for use by the general public.
- Free public wireless access has recently become available in Harvard Square, accessible by laptop or any other wireless device throughout the Square.
- Public (or town) libraries in the area generally have computers available for use by the general public. A number of area libraries with such facilities are listed below.
